

LEGHORNS – BARRED, BROWN, SILVER, WHITE

Leghorns are small, athletic, hardy, non-sitters and lay very nice large white eggs. They produce more eggs on less feed than most chickens. They are capable of considerable flight and often roost in trees if given the opportunity. Livability and resistance to disease are very high, and they make for a good range bird where there is danger of predators.

Main use – E

Egg Production – VH

Size and color – L/White

Best kept free range and confined; heat tolerant.

Classified as Recovering by the ALBC.